marry a poor girl, that he dearly loved & dwell with her in a collage, than have the possession of the Kings palace with a girl he could not love, the mother of Susan Webb, then talked with her privately telling her by no means not to think of marrying Washington Price fearing it would be attended with a bad Consequence, he being under the Controul of his Father, but Susan Webb, paid no attention to the solicit ations of her Mother, said she prefered Price, to any other person on earth she then at that time, tho a girl of no property had offers of Gentlemen superiour to Price as to property or principal, but Price appe =ared, very solicitous and continued his visits to Susan, tho often opposed by the family, in the month of sept last on Sunday evening, Washington Price & Susan Webb, now the wife of Wash =ington Price was setting Conversing together as usual, the mother of Susan [illegible] took her daughter by the hand & pulled her from Washington Price, saying Price, should never have any more conversation with her in her presence Susan, somewhat opposed her mother [illegible] which greatly Exasperated her, but Price, protected
