tree. I think part of the time & most of the time we were searching that Dula was in Jail.

* The so called blood spot was out of reach of the white oak, to which the Horse was tied the second time as we thought; it was some 15 or 20 feet off from the white oak I thought the discovered spot was blood - supposed so from what I concluded was an attempt at concealment I think it a mile or 3/4 from blood spot to grave never at the grave but know the ridge where it was found.

Pauline Foster (recalled by the State) testified I was staying at James Mellows as a hireling; (witness is a young woman) I went there for the first time in March last - Dula was at the house; he was there most every day while in the settlement; he stayed there sometimes at at night, I have seen him in bed with Ann Melton, wife of James Melton frequently There were three beds in the room. James Melton did not sleep with his wife. The prisoner would slip to bed with her after she had gone to bed - he would first lay down with James Melton.

Ann Melton became sick, the remedies she used were blue stone blue Mass & Castic
